Ans: i) Your hobby:

My hobby is reading. I like reading all kinds of things. Whether it is newspaper, novels, magazines, journals or General Knowledge books. I always manage to spare some free time from my hectic school schedule to read story books and other books. My grandfather was the first person who noticed my hobby of reading books and he accordingly motivated me towards the same. With my grandfather motivation, even my parents started encouraging me further towards inculcating this hobby of reading.

Now, I really know the benefits of reading. It enables me to gain all the general knowledge about any topic in the world. This habit makes me aware about the world wonders, history of origin of life, space, animals, plants, human achievements, and other fascinating things about the world. Reading is the best exercise through which one could perhaps become a better person in life. I am proud of my hobby, and will cherish it for life.

iii) Your favourite personality :

My favourite personality is Mahatma Gandhi. He was a great freedom fighter who spent his whole life in the struggle for India's Independence against British rule. Mahatma Gandhi was born in an Indian Hindu family on the 2nd of October in 1869 in Porbander district of Gujarat. His whole life story never fails to inspire people even today. For his contribution in the freedom struggle, he got arrested and sent to jail many a time, but he never discouraged himself.

Mahatma Gandhi is the real father of our nation who really used all his power to make us free from the British rule. He has proved that there is nothing that the power of non-violence can not do, and is the ultimate form of power in the hands of every human being, irrespective of their caste, race, gender, etc. Unfortunately, he couldn't continue his life after the Independence of India in 1947 to see a free India for long, as he was assassinated by one of the Hindu activist Nathuram Godse on 30th of January 1948. But he is still alive in the hearts of every Indian as a "Father of the Nation" who gave India its much deserved freedom.

vi) The uses of refrigerator :

There have been many great inventions by many scientists that have significantly changed the world for the better. The invention of refrigerator could be deemed as one of the most influential inventions in the history of science and mankind. Without refrigerator, it would not have been able to be keep food for long periods of time.

It is because of the refrigerator that one can possess certain daily luxuries, such as cold drink, and could store items for long period of time. The refrigerator, with its low temperature lowers the reproductive rate of bacteria, so that it reduces the rate of spoilage. People are able to purchase food in bulk amounts, without worrying that something will get spoilt. One needs to show appreciation to names like Jacob Perkins, the inventor of the first practical refrigerating machine and William Cullen, a Scottish professor, who is also credited of having designed a small refrigerator machine in the year 1755.
