

Exercises

Reading

A. Answer these questions

1. Who calls out to the wandering singers? What do they do?

Ans. The voice of the wind calls out to the wandering singers. They roam through forest and echoing streets with lutes in their hands.

2. What are the songs of the wandering singers about?

Ans. The wandering singers sing of the lost glories of the cities. They sing of the laughter and beauty of women, old battles and kings of past. They sing happy, simple and sorrowful things.

3. What do the forests and streets echo with?

Ans. The forests and streets echo with the music of the lutes played by the wandering singers.

4. What are the questions in the minds of the wandering singers?

Ans. The singers wonder about the hopes they will gather and the dreams that they will sow in the minds of the people who listen to their songs as they continue on their journey.

